Edgerton.—There is a great possibility of the organization of a unit of the national guard being located in this city to be known as a military headquarters company. The unit will comprise the administrative, scout, messenger and signal detachments. Its peace maintenance strength is one first lieutenant and 41 enlisted men. To make it equipped for an army unit, it will be equipped with uniforms, arms and equipment furnished by the government. The state will furnish, to make it a unit of the national guard, at least $500 per annum, also $50 for each member of the company per year and $25 per month for the care of arms and equipment. There being a vacancy in the national guard, this chance is offered to the city by Adjutant General Holway. Howe Optimistic Over Business Conditions, Industry Going Ahead

Confidence on contract orders would be the backbone to stiffer industrial and commercial trade and bring about a revival which would assure full time employment.

This is the expression of T. O. Howe, president of the Rock River Cotton company, one of the largest firms in Janesville. The company is now working on a part time schedule, at least three days a week, and employing 100 people.

"Certainly we expect and hope for an improvement—all do in every line of business," declared Mr. Howe. "I am hopeful of the future. I see much better times ahead than we have now. We are selling what we produce and each week brings more orders and additional contracts are increasing."

"We have contracts signed and on file which assure us that we are going ahead. No one can expect such orders as we have had in the past. This company, like every other, was running high production not only to fill orders coming in at that time, but also to conserve the future. Last August every machine was running and there was a top business volume."

"The break came and people wouldn't buy any more. Orders were cancelled generally. There was a reaction. Everyone who had been better off at the present time, if the manufacturer had not been so slow in reacting, would have been better off. Eventually they had to sell for less if they could sell at all. When the decline started we sold just as much as we could and consequently as we could condition regarding material and stock on hand now."

Need Confidence.

"There is no question, but what business is a loss. The farmer suffers, but generally the man on the farm is not as used to radical market reactions as is the manufacturer. Likewise the farmer is not used to taking the advances in the market."

"The point right now with this company is that we are selling out about 25 per cent less than we did last year. We are getting contracts for future delivery. We are making just exactly what we have orders to ship. The real fact is that this company, like most other firms, is not going ahead and producing for future business. In other words they are not putting material into storage expecting that it will be sold."

Madison.—Taxation has its day before the legislature Thursday afternoon in a hearing of the joint finance committee and the assembly committee on taxation considering three major revenue raising proposals of the session. Hundreds of business men from all parts of the state crowded the assembly chamber to present arguments on the measures all aimed at increase in the income tax rates.

The Severson income surtax bill, expected to raise an additional $5,000,000, the Constant substitute amendment to the Severson bill, expected to produce an additional $16,000,000, and the Arnold straight income tax bill, with possible return of $25,000,000, were under consideration.

Appeal was made for relief to the farmers and to small property owners by proponents of the suggested legislation. Often without designating bills, the speakers favored the shifting of the burden of taxation from property to incomes, according to the ability to pay.

Emphasis was laid on the Severson surtax in the assembly, where it was the special session of the legislature in May 1920, but vetoed by Governor Phillips. This bill has the direct backing of Governor Elaine and represents the most modest of the suggested bills for change in the income tax laws.

Senator Severson, in presenting his measure, stated that it would reach relatively few persons because of the restriction to incomes of over $5,000, and would then touch but the surface of the larger incomes because of the fact that the surtax stops at 6 per cent on all incomes of over $25,000.

He declared that not a cent would be taken from corporations that are not paying dividends and earning a clear net profit, explaining in answer to arguments that the industry would leave the state if taxed more heavily, that more corporations were established in Wisconsin during the past year than in any other commonwealth in the union except Ohio.

Senator Constant in bringing his more drastic surtax proposal before the committee made a plea for a shifting of the burden of tax from the farmer to industry, according to its ability to pay. His bill, with its maximum of a 10 per cent tax on incomes of over $10,000 is much more justified, he argued, than the present 100 per cent of the farmers' incomes. He said that farmers could not pay more to the state in taxes and that additional income which it was admitted was falling at the present time.

It was brought by Senator Arnold in explaining his straight income tax law, providing for a graduated tax up to 25 per cent on incomes of over $250,000 that the house shortage and high rents are due to the fact that people are afraid to place their money into real estate because of the excessive property taxes.

There was equally strong support for the measures from real estate men, the Non-Partisan League, and representatives of the various industries. Many judges believed that the practical impossibility of increasing general property taxes, to meet the increased cost of the government for the coming two years, would necessitate the raising of additional revenue during the next two years.

Business men claimed that they are unable to meet increased taxes and continue in business. They declared that the federal government on one hand was threatening them by its demands for revenue, with the state equally insistent on the other.

From the suggested measures, the joint finance committee's expected to pass a bill which will incorporate many of the suggestions of each, with every attempt made to treat each side justly. It is believed quite certain that the committee will have the revenue raising measure of the session, and that they stand the greatest chance of being favorably acted on.

Wisconsin apprentices who received wages totalling in excess of the $50 bonus established under state law, in addition to the wage scale set by the state, cannot legally claim the additional money, the attorney general ruled today in an opinion given to the industrial commission.

The opinion resulted from the case of an apprentice with the railroad who received wages at the scale of $1,300 in excess of the state schedule. In addition, the $50 bonus provided under state law on completion of four year period of training was asked. Refusing to grant the right of the apprentice to this money, the attorney general stated that he could have no legal claim on it under the terms of the law.

Attempt will be made to revive the initiative and referendum issue before the present legislative session, the House Judiciary committee, sponsor of the move in the senate, said.

substitute amendment incorporating provisions of the senate resolution with an enabling section, will be offered to the committee when the proposal is under consideration.

The most significant action of the past week came through the senate decision to kill the governor's initiative and referendum proposal by 15 to 10 tie. This failure practically settled the fate of direct legislation in the state for another six years. By making that constitutional amendment be included under provisions of the initiative and referendum, the barriers now surrounding the basic instrument in the administration of the state were removed.

The oratory and argument which followed the initiative and referendum debate in the upper house was the first real display of the session, and overshadowed even the discussions of the assembly in dealing with its tax measures, which aroused bitter debate.

Among the other big measures of the session which have reached the floor of the legislature during the past week is the administrative cost marketing bill, the most comprehensive in the country, according to its author. In the first skirmish, the bill emerged from the senate and is scheduled for consideration Tuesday evening at special order of business.

Evidence of strength has been shown by the bill's passage through the senate. It is a practical idea gathered from application of the present marketing law. While strongly fought because of its regulatory features, the measure is granted under the present law with the exception that means of enforcement are provided.

Prohibition has its inning before the senate. Its committee and is likely to emerge somewhat the worse for wear. Dry forces admit that they have a hard fight on their hands in the upper house to put General Prohibition on its feet.

Trouble developed over explanation of its features by W. Stanley Smith, prohibition commissioner, and by attack of the anti-Saloon league has been tried to misrepresent facts in explaining some of the sections. It has been strongly hinted that Governor Elaine is not content with the Matheison bill at row stands.

The only educational matter of wide interest that developed during the week was the report of the senate education and public welfare committee recommending that the New Junior College bill be passed. Sharp division arose in the committee and it was first reported as indefinitely postponed through a mistake in ordering the vote of one of the members.

ments, and other information concerning persons committing serious offenses.

The next step in securing a constitutional amendment to permit restoration through state action will be taken before the assembly judiciary committee on Thursday when it considers the Titus resolution, already adopted by the senate.

State licensing of private detectives is provided for in a bill of Assemblyman Killian to be considered by the assembly commerce and manufacturing committee on Tuesday.

Included in this proposal as private detectives are all persons not directly employed by a factory, mine, or shop, but who are working for an independent agency protecting the property of another.

Ten o'clock at night is judged as an unreasonable hour for road houses outside of city limits to be open by a bill of Senator Bennett to be considered Wednesday by the educational and public welfare committee. Such houses would be adjudged disorderly and their proprietors faced with a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment in the state jail for six months under terms of the bill.

Senator Bennett introduced the measure, he said, to strike at the large house which, in his opinion, is a large house in the spread of vice. "A disorderly house in purview of the bill" is any building, room, or place whatsoever, which is designed, kept, or used for the indiscriminate frequenting of the sexes at unreasonable hours of the night, time, or which is habitually used or resorted to by persons of opposite sex not lawfully married to each other.

Slot machines that give gum or other merchandise besides chips and coupons are a new device, even though the player is shown the number of chips he will receive before putting his coin in the machine, Attorney General William Morgan has held.

This opinion was given to J. C. Davis, district attorney at Hayward, Wis., who described the machine in question. The device was a gum slot into which a nickel could be played for a package of gum and a number of chips, indicated before the coin was placed in the machine. Chips could be played in the machine, but in this case the player had to insert the number of chips he would get in return.

The argument that the player knows what he gets before using the machine is not valid, the attorney general held. Such a machine would induce a person to play in the hope that the first play will indicate a large reward on the second venture, and he therefore gambles on the second action.

Another point involved in the decision is the kinds of chips used which, it was intimated, were illegal. To be legal, chips or coupons must be redeemable in cash for 25 cents or over and cannot be used if they do not state on the surface, their redeemable value.

Centralized Co-Op Marketing Advocated by County Agents

Centralized co-operative marketing will be urged in Wisconsin as the result of the conference held by the agriculture conference and Farm Bureau secretaries in Racine on Thursday. Marketing of farm products was the chief topic of discussion.

County Agent R. T. Glasco and Secretary Charles E. Culver attended from Rock county.

The farm agents held that the farmers must unite to effect a system of more careful distribution of their products, stock and produce on the market. L. K. Hatch, supervisor of the local sales office, said that the county agents for the southern district spoke, using a uniform policy of work among the county agents and the Farm Bureau.

Through the various associations, the agents held that marketing costs could be cut down and render essential marketing service to the growers. Through a central marketing board it was declared that the growers could sell their materials for a small portion of the consumer's dollar being spent for sales costs.

The local sales units will be united into a state federation for a sales system on the commodity basis. To enable the county organizations to handle a large volume of business, the agents held that the marketing board should be organized to be capable of handling the harvest at one time, and thereby obtaining prices as far as this is economically and completely possible.

The following methods are offered:

- 1.—Building up adequate financial system.
- 2.—Storing seasonal produce for sale in the off-season periods.
- 3.—Obtaining adequate supply and demand facts concerning markets the country over.
- 4.—Providing necessary and adequate connections through which products may be sold constantly.

START PLANTING, GLASSCO ADVISES

Small Garden Truck Can Be Put in Now—Farmers Are Active.

"Plant now!" This is the recommendation of County Agent R. T. Glasco for spring small grains, oats, spring wheat and barley. Many of the county agents have put in immense quantities of these three grains during the last week and many more will plant within the next ten days.

Wilbur Andrew, farmer in the town of Magnolia, has planted his corn for this year for oats and barley.

"The earlier the farmer puts in his wheat and barley the better off he is," declared the county agent. "These small grain crops are best in cool weather. If the farmer can get them started early he stands a good show to escape the hot summer months, which are the greatest danger to the crops. I would not effect the crops in the least. I have seen where the ground in which these grains have been planted, freezes solid and the crops are killed."

Plant Gardens Soon.
The county agent also declared that now is a good time to plant small garden truck, radishes, lettuce and onions.

Farmers in the town of Harmony demonstrated an interest in the soil group test which was being taken in Rock county by G. R. Richards. Richards spoke at the Farm Bureau meeting held in Harmony, Friday night.

"Soils around this township and on the prairie are especially fitted for the growing of alfalfa," Mr. Richards told the bureau members.

Want Lime Crusher.
Harmony farmers will petition the Limestone committee for the placing of one of the new crushers in their township. The Harmony farmers have pledged to use 800 tons of crushed lime in event they can obtain the use of one of the crushers.

The committee are to meet at the court house Monday afternoon.

WOOD CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE IS SUED FOR RENT

The hotel's account showed total charges of $22,466.55. A cash payment of $10,000 was made May 1. A balance of $12,466.55, according to the bill.

READY MARKET FOR COUNTY SECURITIES

$48,000 in Bonds Sold Within Week—Three Gravel Road Contracts Awarded.

Rock county will pay the state of Wisconsin the $22,000 which the county has owed for some months for funds advanced by the state for the county for the building of the Janesville-Beloit concrete road.

The entire $48,000 in road bonds which the county board committee authorized to be sold over the county has been subscribed. When the total cash is paid over for these bonds the county will at once settle with the state highway commission, dated County Treasurer Arthur M. Church, Saturday.

"We could have sold at least $25,000 more of the bonds today," said the treasurer. "There is a good demand for them from local buyers."

Contracts Are Let.
Three contracts were let by the county highway committee and Highway Commissioner Charles E. Moore for gravel roads when bids were opened in the court house Friday afternoon.

The Milton-Whitewater road was awarded to Kennedy Road Construction Co., of Thompson and Johnstone, and the Hoffman road extension in Spring Valley to Fred Carr, Beloit.

"The contract prices are very favorable," declared Commissioner Moore.

Work Starts Soon.
Work is to be started on the three roads by the contractors as soon as the weather permits. Bids on the Hoffman road extension were also opened next Wednesday. It was started Saturday.

THREE HOLD-UPS ARE REPORTED IN CHICAGO. BANDITS ESCAPE
Chicago.—Five bandits who shot Jacob Johnson, messenger for a city express company, escaped Saturday after dropping a $5,000 payroll which they had seized from Johnson. Early in the morning a band of five held up the payroll of an engineering firm and escaped in a taxicab with a $13,000 payroll. Three other automobile robbers held up Harry Rubenstein, a broker, and took jewelry valued at $5,000 and drove away in a large touring car.

BIG CROWD AT LOCAL AUCTION

Farmers from all parts of Rock and surrounding counties attended the farm sale at the Nitscher implement company on North Bluff street, Saturday afternoon. Implements of all kinds were on sale, besides nearly all kinds of farm equipment. Farmers brought their goods to the sale and had them auctioned off by Col. W. T. Doherty. Many bargains in harvesting implements were picked up and old implements no longer being used were the only ones that did not sell well.

A Sweetheart at Thirty

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINICAM

CHAPTER IV.
A SNOWY EVENING.

In my eagerness I forgot all precautions and ran out the door to greet him, without throwing any thing around my shoulders. Instantly I felt myself fairly picked up from the ground, and crushed against him. I remember holding tight to him with my hands and feet, and the feeling of absolute security and peace came over me—Francis was with me, and nothing else mattered. My land, this is a high step, a voice called behind me, and I saw Esther starting to climb out of the car. So I came back to earth again—I started to laugh even, because it was so funny, somehow, that I was always brought down to the ground. Francis turned to help her, and I kissed her, taking her hair, and bundles from her shoulders, and there's a heap of things in the car," she remarked.

"Budd!" Francis' voice had sudden alarm in it. "Go back into the house. You'll be caught with pneumonia—run, you silly child."

Glad to obey even so slight a command as that, and turning at being called a child, I laughed and ran up the path.

By this time James had come out, and between them they brought in Esther's old trunk which was strapped on behind, and the dozen or more bundles and bags who fairly filled the big tonneau of the car itself. Francis was introduced to the family in a room that looked like moving day.

"You must be tired from your long ride, and chilled, too, so we are going to have tea early," I announced. And I motioned James to come and help me.

So the two of us served tea, much as I did in the city, James carrying in a tray of cups and saucers, and bringing me a newly baked cake and some other goodies and butter and jam. I poured tea in the living room, but Jim refused to stay for it, and Laura was frankly contemptuous of what she regarded as "one of Aunt Ed's new city ideas."

"Oh, I always had tea," Esther said, coming to my rescue for once in her life. "When I was a child, I was always having tea at her restaurant. She's a fine girl."

James walked about, happy as could be, urging everyone to eat every last crumb and consuming four cups of tea by himself. James sometimes blossomed out as a delightfully scintillating creature. Then after the first enthusiasm had subsided, Francis went out to the car with the trunk and later with James, climbing the hill towards the north field.

Laura, Esther and myself got shoppings for dinner, and since I had purposely saved up the main menu of the day until evening.

THEY CALL THIS THE "SHIRTWAIST" HAT

By ELOISE.

Straws are beginning to supersede fabric hats and are taking their place as first choice among millinery modes. There are all manner of hats for different costumes and occasions. There are suit hats, sport hats, dressy hats, sailor hats, tailored hats, garden hats and hosts of others. The new-fangled hat, however, is the shirtwaist hat. This is usually made of straw or straw and silk, but it comes in any number of shapes.

Here is one of the newest shapes called the "shirtwaist" hat. The shape of the hat is what makes it distinctive, for there is little trimming adorning it. Note the roll to the brim and the soft crush crown. Embroidered motifs appear on the crown and the only other evidence of the crown and the brim. This hat in a tonneau or jade shade makes a very smart topping for a shirtwaist and skirt costume.

TESTED RECIPES

Grapefruit Salad—Remove pulp from a large grapefruit and add one apple diced. Turn in a nest of lettuce leaves. Serve with Florida salad dressing.

Curry of Mutton with Rice—Place one pound of stewing mutton in small pieces in a saucepan and add water to cover, half a bay leaf, one sliced carrot, a few celery tops and a chopped onion. Simmer until the meat is very tender and cut into small cubes. Strain the gravy in which it has cooked and add a little cold water and stir until smooth and thick. Season to taste with salt and paprika and add a tablespoon of chopped parsley and a scant teaspoon of curry powder. Stir in the cooked mutton and half a teaspoon of kitchen bouquet; heat over hot water and serve.

Macaroni Custard—One quart scalded milk, half cup sugar, one eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, four eggs, two tablespoons cornstarch, eight crushed macaroni. Scald milk in double boiler and thicken with two tablespoons cornstarch. Beat eggs, add sugar, salt and crushed macaroni and pour the hot mixture over them. Return to double boiler and cook until custard thickens sufficiently to coat a spoon. Remove from fire and add vanilla and cool.

INEXPENSIVE DISHES

per. Cook the milk in a double boiler and add salt and pepper. Rub a little hot milk with the chopped peanuts, gradually blend with the rest of the milk. Cook about 20 minutes, then strain. Serve hot with croustons. Onion or celery cooked in the milk is an addition.

Macaroni and Peas—One-half cup chopped peanuts, one cup macaroni, bread crumbs. Boil the macaroni in salted water until tender, drain and let cold water run over it to remove the starchy film. Place a layer of macaroni in a buttered baking dish, then a layer of white sauce and peas. Repeat until ingredients are used up, cover with bread crumbs and bits of butter and bake until brown.

Any fruit salad is improved by adding a few whole peanuts or sprinkling the top with coarsely chopped peanuts.

SALADS FOR SPRING

Parsley Salad—Mix one cup cabbage, shredded, one cup grapefruit cut fine, one-half cup shredded dates, one-half cup chopped nuts. Pour mayonnaise over mixture. Boil on lettuce leaf.

Prune and Apple Salad—One cup prunes cooked until almost tender, then chopped; one-half cup English walnuts, one-half cup apples, diced. Mix with salad or mayonnaise dressing.

Walnut Salad—One-half cup of plumped raisins, two good sized apples, one-half cup nut meat, one stalk celery, one-half cup marshmallows. Pare and core the apples and cut into small strips, chop the celery fine and quarter the marshmallows. Toss all together and serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

TASTY SAUCES

Maple Sauce—Boil two cups of maple syrup until it is thick and pour over it some finely chopped nut meats.

Molasses Sauce—Melt two tablespoons of butter in one cup of maple syrup, add one cup of molasses. Then add one tablespoon of vinegar and two tablespoons of lemon juice.

These beautiful and lovable bird neighbors are by no means as plentiful as during the past generation, thanks to the pestiferous English Sparrows, the feather hunters and the domesticated cat. The Baltimore Orioles delight in swinging their fairly pensile homes in some tree near the house, where they become the victims of Sparrows and cats, so that while the federal and state laws have done away with the feather hunter, the continual onslaughts of the other two unnatural enemies have driven Sir and Lady Oriole into the solitude and comparative safety of the woods.

Lady Oriole is a skilled weaver, and she adapts her swinging cradle to circumstances. If it be swung near a dwelling so that danger from hawks is negligible, the top will be left open, but otherwise the "nest" is bottle-shaped with the opening hidden in the side, so that the mother can feel safe while brooding.

Baby Orioles, however, are the crybabies of the bird world, and no matter how well the nest may be hidden, their constant "crying" will attract attention from everybody and everything within hearing. They are exceedingly little chicks and seemingly gifted with an appetite that just cannot be appeased and are quite as willing to attract attention from hawks as from their parents.

While Baltimore Orioles will sometimes destroy many bugs on our favorite apple and pear trees in their search after insects and will also, on

BALTIMORE ORIOLE

What Shall I Do?

"She Won't Set the Date"

"Dear Miss Page: I have been going with a girl for the last 6 years. I have a partnership in a small hardware business, and a house all ready. She has accepted the diamond ring but will not state the date for the wedding. At times I feel that she is serious. Shall I propose again or what shall I do?—Worried."

"I think I'd be tempted to carry her off to the little house, some dark night, slipping at the minister's on route. But you'd better not try it. It might not work. What I would do, if I were you, is to talk to her over with a young lady, tell her that she owes it to you to set a definite date when she will marry you, or tell you why she won't. Perhaps she has some objection that you can overcome. At any rate, you have a right to insist upon knowing what she intends to do. Ask her."

Can't Go Out Nights

"Dear Miss Page—I am a plain working girl, 16 years old. Do you think it is proper of my mother not to let me out nights to the show with my girl friend?—Anxious Marie."

I can't tell from what you have written me, what I would do if I were your mother—but the chances are that she is right, Marie. Perhaps she doesn't like and can't trust your girl friend and fears for you when you are with her. Or perhaps you want to go too often, and mother knows that you can't stand it and keep on with your work. At any rate, remember she loves you and you can't go wrong if you try to please her. You are young yet, with lots of time for shows—though of course do understand how much you want to go right now. Why not ask Mother to go with you, Marie?

I Hope He Sees This

"Dear Mrs. Page—My husband and I had a quarrel and he left me and I have never heard from him. We will be married a year in April and I am heartbroken as we both

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been having a boy with me who seemed to like me real well and wanted me to go with him, which I wouldn't do. Now he snubs me because I would not. Do you think he really likes me? I hate to have him act that way. How can I make him like me better without going with him alone?
CARRIE E.

Let the boy have his own way. He likes you or he would not snub you. If you remain firm and independent in his signs of resentment he may decide the best way is to agree to a friendship on your terms.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in junior high school and am a stranger. I have no many friends. Please advise me how to get acquainted.
CURLY.

Getting acquainted is often a slow process. You know it is necessary to go half way or people will not do their part. When you meet some one you like, be just as pleasant as you know how to be and do your share of the talking. Unless you prove yourself to be interesting, people will not take an interest in you. Be kind and courteous and thoughtful of others and you will earn friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 17 and am in love with a young fellow a little older than I. He seems to care a great deal. We have been going together off and on for a year, but now he doesn't want me to go with others and I feel as though he is wrong.
I am in another city now on business and will be here for some time, but he feels I should come back to him. Would it be a wise plan for me to go back to him, or would it be better to stay where I am and hold my position? We are almost

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

Your remarks about me being lucky because I don't have to pay much income tax sounded just like you, to say the least. It would be as much sense for me to say you are lucky because you don't get so many new hats that it's necessary to donate a dozen to the Salvation Army every year. No, Tessie, I'd welcome the chance to prove how cheerfully I'd fork over a big income tax, and if Rockefeller offered to swap bank rolls with me to avoid paying out a few millions in income taxes I'd swap without blinking an eye and do my duty by that good old axiom, the U.S. Treasurer, with a hundred per cent American smile. That's the kind of a little guy I am, Tessie.

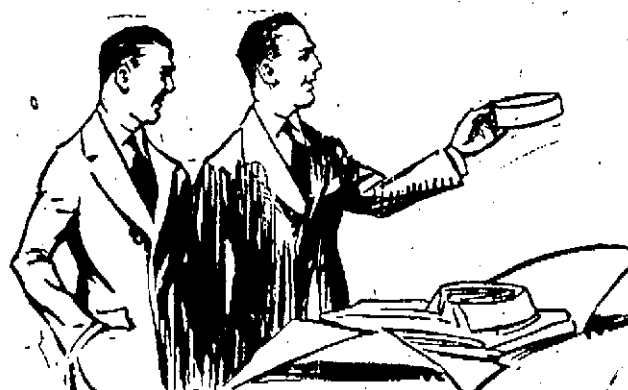

And what's more, Tessie, I believe that most of this alleged so called reputed kicking against paying a big income tax is merely double-dissembled bunk. A bird that has to fork over a thousand or so income tax may gnash the air and tear his teeth while he tells the world his troubles, but he means it about as much as a woman means it when she tells another, "This croppe de wawa dress and homing pigeons suit me $35.68. Isn't that perfect robbery?" and then goes her way leaving the other female weak with envy.

I think you're right about Ford being misinformed in charging the Jews with starting the war and a few other little tricks like that. I asked Moe Einstein about it yesterday—Moe ekes out a hand to mouth existence trying to sell suspenders on the road in an age of bells—and he assured me that when the war broke out it was as much of a surprise to him as to everybody else.

Well, enjoy yourself and always count your change.
Loveingly,
JOE.

"Heart-Broken Lenora": You have ample cause for a divorce. As a rule I do not advise divorce, but in your case there seems no other way out.

American Once Tried to Be King of Yap; Read History of This Speck on the Map

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington.—The controversy between the United States and the council of the league of nations over the mandate given to Japan over the Island of Yap, brings before the public another one of those little known spots of strategic importance. From the time the peace conference convened until the moment the treaty was signed, many such places cropped up.

Hardly ever before now, however, has so tiny a place occupied so important a position in the minds of Americans. The league of nations, attempting to include Yap in the group of former German islands group over which Japan is given a mandate, has been rebuffed by a strong note from Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby. The American contention is that Yap must be internationalized.

Where is Yap and why is it important? The island is located directly east of the Philippine Islands and southwest of Hawaii. It is slightly less than 700 miles from the Philippines and 3,500 miles from Hawaii.

Its greatest importance is that it is a link in the communications chain with the Orient, but it has a strategic importance in that it lies not far south of the direct line from Guam, the American coaling station, and Manila, 1,600 miles away.

Cables landing at Yap. One of three cables landing at Yap comes from Guam. The three cables are the only means of communication with the Orient. If the other lines fail, these cables, formerly owned by the Germans, were relied on for this purpose. If the Guam-Yap-Shanghai route, if the Guam-Tokio, Guam-Shanghai and Yap-Shanghai lines were broken the Guam-Yap and Yap-Japan lines would still connect America with the Orient.

The military importance of Yap is unmistakable. It stands at the gate of the Philippines and the Orient. America's route to the Philippines lies 2,100 miles from San Francisco to Hawaii, 3,337 miles from Honolulu to Guam and then 1,500 miles to Manila. Yap stands half way between the two last ports. As a Japanese naval base it would serve to menace both Guam and the Philippines.

One of Caroline Islands. Yap is one of the Caroline Islands, a group extending east and west for 2,000 miles. They are situated near the equator and consist of 43 low islands and five basaltic islands. They fall into three groups—west, central and eastern. Yap is one of the four largest islands, the others being Ponape, Kusaie and Guam. Under the German rule the islands were divided into two administrative districts, with the seats of government at Ponape and Yap.

The islands were discovered by a Portuguese, Diego de Roa, in 1521, and called by him the Segura Islands. In 1559 Admiral Francisco Laxan named them the Carolines in honor of King Charles II of Spain. Until the eighteenth century they were seldom visited by foreigners. In 1731 a party of missionaries was massacred.

A century and a half later, in 1833, the story runs, David O'Keefe of Savannah, Ga., came up on the shore after a shipwreck, married a Polynesian woman, had a daughter and became King of Yap. The self-appointed King lost his throne when Spain asserted her rights to the islands and was met by a counter claim from Germany. Pope Leo XIII arbitrated the question in 1855, upheld the claim of the Spaniards, but gave the Germans free trading rights.

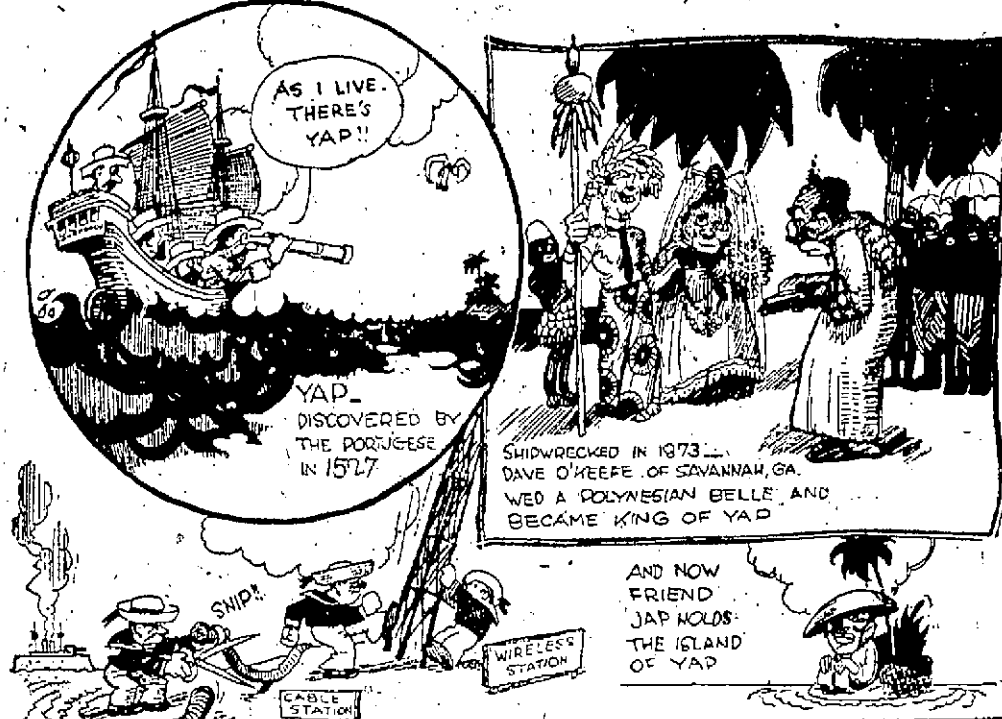

In 1898 Spain gave up the administration of the islands to Germany.

NEW TYPE MAIL BOX MAY BE PUT ON STREET CARS

By means of this new type mail box attached to street cars operating in Washington between Georgetown and Rockville, letters can be placed in the hands of the postman several hours earlier than by the street box. Letters may be dropped into the top while cars are in motion. The plan is receiving its official test on this line and may later be installed on all interurban cars. The postman is shown receiving the mail at the end of the line. The box is made without lid or covering of any kind.

many for 25,000,000 pesos. The United States had seemingly not noticed them when it took the Philippines a short time before the Germans bought the Carolines.

Yap, with its 79 square miles of surface and 3,000 population, became important again in 1914. In August of that year British cruisers destroyed the wireless station at Yap and cut the cables. On October 7 the Japanese squadron took possession. This came as a surprise, since an official statement issued in London on August 18 had said that Japan would not extend her activities beyond the China sea.

In answer to an American inquiry the Japanese government assured Secretary of State Bryan that the occupation was for military purposes only and would not be permanent.

Use Stones as Coinage. The natives of Yap are peaceful, the climate good and the air healthful. The harbor is good for trading purposes and is outside the coral-quake belt. There was a slight quake late in 1920, but there is seldom one of dangerous proportions. Accurately speaking, the natives are Micronesian hybrids of good physique and mentality. They are careful agriculturists and can build boats and handle them. The principal article of export is copra.

On various islands of the Carolines there are stone ruins which are believed to have been built by prehistoric races which had made some advances in general culture.

The natives of Yap are noted for possessing the most remarkable currency on earth. Besides the ordinary shell money used by the natives, there is a kind of stone coinage consisting of huge limestone discs from six inches to twelve feet in diameter, some weighing as much as five tons.

They are all cut out of stone in the Pelew Islands, 200 miles south, and are brought to Yap in vessels. Some were in the islands years ago and must have been brought by primitive rafts. The stones do not circulate, are piled up around the chief's house and appear to be regarded as public property.

In 1898 Spain gave up the administration of the islands to Germany.
